Description

Formally part of a dairy farm, Avon Stream Copse & Meadow has been less intensively managed more recently with a single cut of the meadow area and little disturbance to the tree lined northern and southern boundaries. This gentle management with recently planted copse of 50 trees has allowed wildlife to thrive.

There are many options for enjoyment of this picturesque land, from addition tree or orchard planting, small scale growing for self-sufficiency purposes to wildlife watching and occasional overnight stays with family and friends.

The attractive pond provides a habitat for numerous aquatic species, hours can be spent just sitting watching the comings and goings of the local wildlife as they make use of this wonderful feature.

The purchasers of the meadow will be asked to enter into a covenant to ensure the quiet and peaceful enjoyment of adjoining woodlands and meadows.

Trees

Along the northern boundary is a hedge bank lined with mature oak trees with a fringe of shrubs providing privacy. Just below here is a recently planted copse of trees with birch, hazel, rowan and oak.

At the southern edge is a copse of willow and hazel and a majestic oak tree along the stream.

Wildlife

Within the meadow and copse are a variety of colourful wildflowers including stunning blue bugles within the trees and the fairly rare 'ragged robin' upon the lower wetland area.

The wildlife pond has already attracted frogs, shown by the large number of tadpoles found here. Local populations of geese and ducks frequent the pond and surrounds and snipe have been seen within the meadow.

Buzzards and kestrels hover around looking for voles and mice in the lush, thick grass and along the stream there are signs of otters travelling through.

The occasional roe deer passes through, it is always a treat to see these secretive creatures.

Features

A good sized parking and turning area is found at the entrance next to the pond which has a bench. Do take some time when visiting too sit here and take in the surroundings.

This is an ideal place for parking a camper van for occasional overnight stays.

Access, tracks and footpaths

From the public highway there is a short section of metalled road that leads to the main entrance gate. Once through the gate there is a stoned track that leads to the entrance of Avon Stream Copse & Meadow. Here there is a parking area near the pond, an ideal location for camping or parking a campervan.

The land is private with no public rights of way.

Rights and covenants

The purchasers of the meadow will be asked to enter into a covenant to ensure the quiet and peaceful enjoyment of adjoining woodlands and meadows.

Activities

Overnight camping is a wonderful experience, listening to the hoot ta hoot of an owl whilst star gazing next to a warming fire..... this really is perfect base in which to explore the south Devon coastline.

Forest bathing on the level clearing by the stream is a hugely pleasant way to spend time.

Harvesting logs for a campfire, creating wildlife hides and are two of the many activities that can be enjoyed here.

Local area and history

Flowing west to east, the stream along the southern boundary eventually joins the River Avon near Aveton Gifford. This rural village includes the church of St Andrews, one of the oldest churches in Devon constructed around 1250 AD. From here the River Avon eventually joins the sea at Avonmouth, set between the popular beaches of Bantham Sand and Bigbury-on-Sea.

These beaches are within 15 minutes drive of Avon Stream Copse & Meadow - Bantham is a great surfing beach, and the marvellous Bigbury-on-Sea hosts Burgh Island where you can enjoy lunch at the Pilchard Inn and enjoy a walk on the beach or a trip on the sea tractor if the tide is in and the Island cut off!

Modbury lies a couple miles to the north along the A379 and is a thriving market town with a variety of shops, pubs and restaurants.

Particulars and plans were prepared by our local manager, Stuart Brooking.
